Communiqué

The Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela hereby congratulates the governments of the sisterly Caribbean region on the 50th anniversary of the creation of the Caribbean Community (CARICOM); an integration mechanism that came upon the signing of the Treaty of Chaguaramas on July 4, 1973, with a view to consolidating the unity and integration of its peoples, characterized by their historical struggle and resilience

Venezuela maintains its firmest will to continue strengthening the friendship and bilateral cooperation with the Caribbean nations, thus, effectively contributing to the challenges posed by today's world, in the spirit of solidarity and complementarity.

The Bolivarian Government wishes to extend this message to all the Caribbean Governments and Peoples, auguring a fortunate future towards the longed-for Latin American and Caribbean integration.
